

NO DRIVING LESSONS FOR LORENZ

A Greeley automobile dealer, Blair Rugh, recalled that Phillip H. Lorenz came to the dealership, took a fat roll of bills from his pocket and purchased a new car. Rugh promised Lorenz a driving lesson before he headed home, but Rugh first had to wait on another customer. Lorenz became impatient, and with no prior driving experience, started his car and roared out of the lot. Alarmed, Rugh jumped into his own car but was unable to catch up with Lorenz' speeding new car. By the time Rugh caught up to Lorenz he was in his driveway. Lorenz, smiling, got out of his new car and announced to the terrified car dealer, "She go fine all the way, YAH!"
